London wedding

London - where at St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge, Miss Myrtle Crawford - (a leading fashion model) arrives for her wedding to Captain Jock Acland of the Scots Guards. The Bride wore a gown of white wool lace - and was attended by five bridesmaids...

Yes, for the model bride who has so often faced the cameras for fashion magazines - this was the real thing.

King Hussein

The Red Sea, when in the Gulf of Aqaba, King Hussein of Jordan went aboard the cruiser "Glasgow" as guest of Admiral Lord Mountbatten - the Mediterranean C.in.C... During his stay, the young King had details of the ship's armament explained to him - and watched her take part in battle manoeuvres. And later came the thrill of being transferred by jack-stay to the despatch vessel - H.M.S. Surprise.

Closing the Dykes

Holland - where the last breach in the dykes of Zealand (caused by the tragic February storms) is to be sealed by a concrete caisson - which has been towed from Britain. Three caissons have already been laid in position. Our diagram shows how the fourth will finally close the gap. The operation is finally completed at low tide, just before midnight, watched by Queen Juliana. Holland triumphs once again over her oldest enemy - the sea.

New American plane

America - where rockets (over a hundred of them) are being loaded into the nose of a plane. These provide the sting of the "Northrop Scorpion" - which American experts claim as their most heavily-armed jet fighter. Most scorpions keep their sting in the tail. This one leads with its nose as a super-speed camera records its K.O. punch.
