"The Exhibition is being held in Scotland and was brought into being by Scottish initiative, enterprise and money. This is very fitting, for Scotland has made and will continue to make a notable contribution to imperial development."

"Now, more perhaps than at any other time, there is need for understanding and co-operation between the nations. We of the British Commonwealth can give a living example of these principles."

"It was an idea very near the heart of my father whose proudest title was that of Colonial Secretary. It is an ideal which I have done my utmost to forward."

"I welcome the Exhibition, and I join with those in this Hall in wishing it success."
