Tanks in Egypt.

Discs: 535.579.422

Quantities of mechanised units have been sent to Egypt. In all respects, both of men and of materials, the British Middle East Army has extricated itself from the grave position it was placed in by the French surrender.

General Wavell watched the reinforcement. Germany has shown that success in the present war can only be won by 1940 methods. As soon as they were unloaded the tanks and guns were hauled on to the train waiting to rush them to the front.

New-type 25-pounder field-guns were included in the shipment, mobile guns well suited to warfare in the desert. Our army is getting the machines, and mechanisation is the key to victory.
