Back from a cruise President Roosevelt was due to address Congress, where he reiterated that America will redouble her aid to Britain. He had just met the Duke of Windsor who represented the British Government on a diplomatic mission. The Duchess was returning to her own country after several years. Happy and friendly the Duke was the spokesman.

A gift on wings ! A Lockheed-Vega bomber was presented to Britain by the workers of that famous airplane manufactory. They built and paid for it. She is a beauty, and we say 'Thank You!'

.....

The White House had a royal visitor again when Princess Juliana called on Mrs. Roosevelt and the President.

The heiress to the Dutch throne is spending the war in Canada with her two little daughters. Obliging the cameramen she said a few words in English - very good English too.

OFF-STAGE VOICE---DUKE AND DUCHESS

1. Title: WINDSORS IN U.S.A

The palatial private yacht Southern Cross makes port, from Nassau! For Miami visitors, it's a chance to ~~watch~~ see the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. She's here to undergo a dental operation, and is back in her native United States for the first time in 12 years. It's been 16 years since the Duke was here. He sets foot on American soil just four years after his historic abdication, in an England then at peace. Thousands cheer the royal visitors along the 8-mile route to St. Francis Hospital. Here, the Duchess had an abscessed impacted wisdom tooth removed.

But first, a camera treat....(won't your Highness just move over a bit?)...

Now, a formal statement.....

2. The cruiser Tuscaloosa brings home President Roosevelt. For 11 days, he's cruised
13. 3,000 miles through the Caribbean, inspecting America's newly acquired bases.
Just before his return, the President was host to the Duke of Windsor, here shown departing for the meeting somewhere in the waters of the Bahamas. The conference gives rise to much speculation as to the Duke's future role in Britain's great struggle. A Navy plane was assigned to the Duke for the journey. As these pictures of the Duke's return from his visit with the President reach the screen, word comes that England has made a formal request to the United States for financial assistance.... Now the Duke tells of his visit....
