Sheffield, one of the industrial centres hit by air-raids, is the latest town to experience the characteristic kindness of the King and Queen. Their Majesties talked with the brave people who've endured indescribable horrors. Many were bombed out of house and home; some have lost everything but their unconquerable Yorkshire spirit.

(SV women and children with flags) As in all parts of the country, King and people are united in their determination to work and fight till victory.

On the Horse Guards Parade the first all American motorised squadron of the Home Guard was inspected by Mr. Churchill. Fifty U.S. business-men have donned our uniform to fight for the country they love next to their own. The Prime Minister, son of an American mother, and recognised in the States for the valiant leader he is, warmly greeted their commander, General Wade-Hayes.

Mrs. Churchill accompanied the Premier.

(SCU inspects) The formation of this unit is another proof that the United States is with us in our struggle. Mr. Churchill could always smile, even when things were at their blackest. Now we're winning magnificent victories in Egypt he smiles broader than the sphinx.
