In a BBC studio parents of 17 children who are safe in Canada and America talked with them over the Atlantic radio - heard their voices for the first time since they went away. Eight of the youngsters were in New York; the other nine were spread over Vancouver, Houston, Winnipeg, Montreal, Halifax and Toronto. The magic radio brought their voices to London.

Scenes here without voice, (commentary).

Mr. and Mrs. Lofenstein took the next turn at the microphones.
