At the Marquis of Queensbury's boxing tournament for the RAF benevolent fund Will Hay and Sydney Howard auctioned a signed portrait of the Premier for £1,000.

The bidder was invited into the ring. His generosity boosted the afternoon total to £5,000. He's Mr. Jack Biddle, a Canadian aircraft manufacturer.

Famous boxers now in the RAF made an 'all star' bill. Here's Peter Kane (in dark trunks) versus Teddy O'Neil. Kane is an ex-flyweight champion and he proved too clever for his plucky opponent.

Peter Kane got the verdict.

Tom Reddington gave away two-and-a-half stone to Jack London, the human tank from Hartlepool.

(2nd CU) Reddington has been misled by all these stories that London can take it. Jack can dish it out too.

Jack London can't fight a man his own size. There isn't one.

Eric Boon, the lightweight champion, who has now gone up into the welter class, took on Dave Finn. They gave the crowd six rounds of topline fighting.

(STV 2 after CU) It's a long time since Londoners saw so many stars in the ring on one bill. Eric Boon won his fight. The RAF fund had a rich harvest, and the crowd got a great show.
