1.	The story I had in mind was that it opens with the clock at 6.30 am and the girl pulls back the curtains of her bedroom as the start of the day. Then the cleaning up of the gear together with shots of the dressing and then Chapel at 8.30 or 9.
2.	10 or 11 oclock the work is on....motor drivers, office work, or drill, then gas mask drill and etc. About one oclock comes luncheon then back to work again, and so until about four when an English tea is served, then the times gradually becomes their own and so the games start, fortune telling is experienced and then to bed after a dance to the piano.
3.	The roof watching can play a part as the work of the day, and then the planes are sighted and the message conveyed by telephone to the occuoants of the building, when gas mask drill is then practised.
4.	Madame Mathieu is the chief and she is seen at her desk, where a picture of De Gaulle is plainly seen. Various shots of the girls standing with effect lighting against the
5.	French flag. Shi of the dining room and the girls eating.
