Scotland's war-effort again received royal encouragement during the King's tour of East coast naval establishments, including Rosyth dockyard. Veterans of the last war were prominent in the ranks of the Home Guard, which provided the Guard of Honour. Music suitable to place and occasion came from the Black Watch.

There's never any spare time on a royal tour programme, so His Majesty boarded a naval pinnace to visit another part of the dockyard.

Coming ashore the King found a body of naval officers and ratings (not to mention WRNS), awaiting inspection. On this tour the Services, war-workers and our Polish allies have all been honoured by King George.
