From Canada they're still coming over. At the port of disembarkation the Dominions Under Secretary, Geoffrey Shakespeare, welcomed the biggest contingent of Canadian troops to arrive here since the war began. Canada has been in the struggle since the beginning but at no time have her men and women been more determined on beating the enemy than now.

(LV AFTER CU NURSES) By tender they transferred from liner to shore. The contingent included a tank brigade, airmen, infantry, gunners and forestry corps. Welcome to the Canadians.

(LV AFTER CU FEET) As they landed on British soil they were greeted by the G.O.C. of the Canadian Forestry Corps, Brigadier General White. His greeting was our welcome too.

Coastal defences were inspected by King Peter of Yugoslavia, at the invitation of the Prime Minister. Mrs. Churchill was also there. Nobody's talking much about invasion these days but the fighting services keep it very much in mind and the guns are ready.

With the shooting the Premier may not have been satisfied, because he got them to show him how to fire a salvo, and he put all he feels about Hitler into pressing the button.

If that wicked man had been within range I couldn't have missed him !

They've sent the Tank Corps a valentine. That's the name of the new infantry tank which His Majesty was among the first to inspect. It's a low-built 16-tonner, mounting a Besa gun and a two-pounder which can pierce the armour of any Jerry tank there is. We are promised that before long the army will have all the tanks it wants. The Valentine is claimed to be the best for its purpose yet designed.
