The royalty in question are Dutch, and it was at her home in Canada that Princess Juliana gave a charming, informal interview to Paramount News. It was during the short leave of Prince Bernhard, and he was able to join in the fun and help his wife to give swimming-lessons to Princess Beatrix, their chubby 3-and-a-half-year-old first born.

Princess Irene, now very nearly two, was next on the list, She's the baby of the family, at least for the time being.

.... Now don't swallow your bath water.... Why not spit it out.

It's all right for Daddy with that camera. How'd he like to be in the water ?

After the swimming lesson we took some pictures indoors. Prince Bernhard has got his wings and is serving with the RAF. He had to cross the Atlantic for this brief family reunion, but the heiress to the Netherlands throne has been persuaded by the Dutch government to stay out of the danger zone, in the welcome refuge of a British Dominion, till the soil of Holland is no longer defiled by the invaders' tread.
