By air from Nassau, on the way to his Alberta ranch, the Duke of Windsor, accompanied by the Duchess, began a six weeks holiday from routine at the Bahamas. Everywhere in the States they've had a big welcome.

The Duke reviewed some RAF cadets who were paraded in his honour. Always keen on aviation he went inside the depot to see other aspects of technical training.

After a pleasant little platform ceremony the Duke and Duchess entrained on the crack Silver Meteor to go to Washington. The Duke went to the engine-cabin and they let him drive. Envious U.S. youngsters said, "D'you call that democracy?"

(CAMERAS) Washington also acclaimed them, and while there they posed for pictures and gave a Paramount News interview. The ex-Mrs. Simpson left it to her husband to thank America for Aid For Britain.

WINDSOR: "I would like to speak for my countrymen in expressing to America the heartfelt thanks of Britain for the moral and material support America is so lavishly giving her in this time of trial."

In San Jose, capital of Costa Rica, President Guardia attended Anti-Nazi Day. In their new festival the folks of this Central American Republic made it clear that the Axis doesn't cut any ice with them. They're quite a nice long way away. (CU SIGNS) Still, it's a good sign that Latin America wants the bad boys put where they belong.

In Walrus amphibians, Fleet Air Arm pilots complete training in dive bombing. This department of the navy has sunk, or disabled, forty warships (Remember Taranto?), and half-a-million tons of merchant shipping, as well as bringing down 200 enemy aircraft. See how they learn their job.

(LAST SCENE: LANDING) Back on the water ! Almost ready for a crack with the enemy !

Here's a backyard oil boom. Using a fence-post digger and going just deep enough to insert a pump, everybody can get refined petrol - which is more than any other oil well in the world yields. There's a big refinery nearby, from which the spirit seeps through the ground. Plots only 30-foot square rent for £200 a year, and one man made that much in his first week. You can slim and grow fat at the same time. They actually have the nerve to sell the petrol back to the oil company. If they can get some good holes punched in the refinery tanks they'll all make a fortune.

U.S. CAMERAS

1. TITLE.
2. Edward, Duke of Windsor, climbs aboard a Miami streamliner, and our Paramount News cameras go along, as the former king begins his first American tour since 1924.
6. First stop is Washington, D.C.--just 37 miles from Wallis Windsor's native Baltimore. They'll visit there on their return from Edward's Canadian ranch.
9. There are hearty cheers throughout the day of quick visits. At the State Department, work is almost at a standstill when Edward arrives. During the Duke's official greeting, Mrs. Windsor waits outside, joining her husband for a 27-minute visit to the White House.
14. Chicago turns out in the early morning to see the distinguished couple, who change trains for Calgary, Alberta.
20. Highlight of this first part of the royal visit was the formal newsreel interview at Washington's British embassy. The imposing camera barrage appeared to amuse the photogenic Duke....
24. The Duchess strove to please...
25. Now the Duke's statement....
