And now, Aid for Russia ! Britain's factories magnificently responded to Lord Beaverbrook's appeal for hundred-per cent effort in Tanks-for-Russia week. Every tank made in this country during those seven days was shipped to the Soviet front. Our combination of mass-production and first class British workmanship produces weapons in great numbers and of highest grade. Tank-turrets are balanced to finger-pressure. / This new effort was not called forth by some dull request to provide against invasion - while Germany has her hands full on the Eastern Front - it was an inspired call to help the valiant Red Armies.

The hearts of British munition workers go out to the Soviet millions whose devotion to the Stalin regime Hitler cannot shake. Tank-tracks pile up for despatch to the assembly line. Every weapon the Russians want we shall send them as soon as we can.

(GIRL) Women were pulling their weight at every Ministry of Supply factory visited by the Paramount cameramen who made this exclusive survey of the British Help Russia effort. Women help to make engines and everything else for which our allies cry out: help to make guns for tanks, thousands of them, made to kill Germans.

Out of the factories roll the tanks for Russia. They will not stop now that Tank Week is over. In Moscow Lord Beaverbrook has learned just how much aid the Soviet needs. He will enthuse the workers to provide it. Britain, the Soviet, America - that is the combination that spells Hitler's doom.
