

Issue No. 1109..14..10..1941

Title: Stolen Heaven.

Back: ditto

Lines: Stag.

Voice: do.

Tanks and aeroplanes are on the way to Soviet Russia. The full quota promised for October is already there. Uncle Joe's requirements will be met to the full. Many times we have shown U.S. war material coming into this country; now for the first time we show British weapons on the way to our ally. And just as America supplies us on a Lease-Lend basis, so the aeroplanes in these crates, the tanks and all the other material we now send to the Soviet will be without payment. The Lease-Lend formula means maximum effort all round.

(6 SCENES WITHOUT VOICE: PAN FROM ROPE TO TANK) The Moscow Mission put the Anglo-Soviet alliance on the sound basis of business, friendship and complete understanding. The factories of Britain and America will keep the valiant Red Armies fully supplied with the sinews of war.

Lord Beaverbrook calls for unremitting effort to fulfill our obligations to Russia:

"You know how deeply we are concerned. For if the Russians fall our turn comes next.<sup>s</sup> But if the Russians are sustained <sup>and then</sup> our battle is fought out and won we are completely committed to the Russian cause as if we were ourselves a part <sup>and</sup> a share in that great Union of peoples. Now when I talked <sup>with</sup> the Russian Prime Minister he asked me for supplies and I promised, that promise is given on your behalf. I spoke the words - you must do the deed, and I promised <sup>can</sup> I assure you in a very big way.

CU. " I want you to know that you are fighting in Russia for your hearth and your home in Britain. And I want you to know in the factory and <sup>I am sure you will feel in the</sup> you have been in the factory that you are just as much concerned in the battle as if you were in the trench line. For the aircraft that you build and the tanks that you send out to the Russians are involved in the war, it is common to all those elements in the world that will <sup>not</sup> ~~submit to be~~ enslaved, that will not submit to torture, that will not give way to domination brutal, unreasoning, cruel, harsh and even murderous. So I call upon you, everyone of you in the name of freedom, in the name of liberty to put forward now and here all your efforts, every bit of fortitude and courage and endurance that's in you so that we may prevail in that struggle that can have only one ending <sup>the triumph</sup> ~~that of God or the destruction~~ of mankind through the forces of evil. <sup>utter</sup>