

FLASHES:

The U boat menace is all-but defeated. North American ports dispatch the ever-rising volume of war-goods to Britain, and now-a-days, <sup>nearly</sup> everything is delivered; a change indeed from the days when many shiploads went to the bottom. The Allies now fully command the Atlantic, witness this typical action in which a Naval sea-plane ~~tender~~ sends the raider to ~~the~~ the bottom.

On the way to battlefields,

Yugoslav nurses in battle-dress left ~~an embarkation~~ <sup>a</sup> port in Italy, at the completion of their training, ~~on the way~~ of ~~to the battlefields~~. Wounded partisans are Marshal Tito's brave army watched the girls ~~embark~~ go aboard. A thirteen year old Guerilla fighter was among the spectators, as some of Tito's men, now recovered from wounds, also em-barked.

The Yugoslav leader has become one of the big figures of <sup>force</sup> the war, pinning down a large ~~force~~ of Germans sorely needed elsewhere. Marshal Tito has stated that when the Second Front begins he himself will launch a powerful attack. Everywhere in Yugoslavia the flag of liberation will soon fly.
