

~~XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX~~ KITCHEN REFORM WINS APPROVAL OF LORD WOOLTON.

In the West End there is an exhibition of kitchens. One model, designed for a flat, has the plumbing contained in a wall with the bathroom on the other side. These kitchens, all of them in units which can be mass produced, are what most women want. They'll be available in great numbers when manufacture is possible after the war. The designers have consulted hundreds of housewives in their search for <sup>labour-saving</sup> ideas. One distinguished visitor to the exhibition was the Minister of <sup>Re-</sup>Construction, Lord Woolton,

In these days of little domestic help designers have evolved the livingroom-kitchen. Food is <sup>brought round</sup> ~~handed over~~ the partition and there is all the convenience of eating in the kitchen, with the feeling of having a separate diningroom. Just <sup>a</sup> ~~one~~ little <sup>practical</sup> contribution to the brave new world.
