KING ENTERTAINS
EX-WAR CAPTIVES

At the first garden Party held at Buckingham Palace since the outbreak of war, 1,800 repatriated prisoners were His Majesty's guests. The men were selected from all three services. Music was provided by a military band. The King, Queen and Princesses spoke to as many of the fighting men as they could. In the big gathering all the Dominions, India and the Home Country were represented.

C/4 2 ~~of Gurkha~~ The garden party was rounded off by refreshments.

It was all a bewildering change to men who were in German prison camps only a few weeks ago. Once again the British family of nations, united under the Crown, has come out on top.
