Rugby was the first town of any size ~~visited~~ visited by the Prime Minister at the beginning of his 1000-mile election tour of the country.

Rugby was the first town of size through which the Prime Minister passed at the beginning of his 1000-mile tour of the country. At nearby Leamington, Anthony Eden's constituency, Mrs. Eden was in the front of the crowd. The tour was one prolonged triumph. The country was seeing at close quarters the man who led it to victory. Millions of people turned out to cheer their vociferous thanks. The next Midland town was Coventry. On subjects dear to the man in the street - housing, employment, the cost of living - ~~the Prime Minister~~ the Prime Minister spoke with eloquence and feeling.

All Birmingham seemed to have turned up to cheer him.
