

on in the new world. <sup>The</sup> Business man gets away early to keep a date with the girl friend a hundred miles away, and takes a tennis racket, as if we didn't know it was just a love-set.

(three fly) The fliver doesn't look anything like a Lancaster, but the war's over. <sup>Melton, well he know t old</sup> The U-boat pens in Hamburg, ~~most of the submarines which almost won the war for Germany~~ have been demolished. Scores of German bombs were pushed into the ~~pens~~ <sup>Pens</sup> and ~~used for the big blow-up - the only way to demolish the heavy concrete structures in quick time.~~ <sup>smash</sup> Germans made these bombs to be dropped on England and never expected them to be put to a sensible use.

So The brave new world <sup>get down 2 sun</sup> ~~includes~~ new ideas on women's hats. Not content with making husbands dip into their pockets to provide new millinery, the girls now take their men's hats, pep them up a little and turn them into creations that Paris wouldn't be ashamed of. ~~ten gallon hat is ideal for the change.~~ Woman has often worn the trousers. Now she wants the hat <sup>as well</sup> too. It looks like a cold winter. <sup>The open hat gets a new home of</sup> seriously you wouldn't know your ~~old~~ <sup>old</sup> bowler would you?

4 However <sup>T</sup> the new world has a lot of sensible things, ~~too~~. How about a telephone in your car? Always in touch with home wherever you ~~are~~ <sup>happen to be</sup>. Mother finds her little boy has a temperature. The doctor's out on his rounds, but the new idea enables her to get him on the phone - a boon to her, even if the doctor doesn't appreciate it.

All the same there's much to be said for the pre-telephone days. At least that's what henpecked Harry thinks, <sup>5</sup> ~~he's~~ <sup>he's</sup> doing to family shopping.

Title:
Bg:
Eff:
Meltzer
Oak
EXCL.
#15

October 15, 1945

TITLE: CALLING ALL CARS!

2. New York. Calling all cars for a preview of tomorrow! A radiotelephone on your dashboard, ready to connect you while you drive with home or office. In the trunk compartment, a tiny radio-transmitter sends your voice out over the airwaves to the nearest central station, where regular telephone-operators can connect you with any telephone on land or sea. It works both ways. To call an auto from your home, you give the operator the number of the vehicle you wish. She in turn will ring the motorist's phone by radio, as he sits at the wheel. Here's one way it could be used. Mrs. Jones' little boy Bobby awakes with a high temperature. It's too late to call Dr. Smith at home, but -- it's not too late to reach him by phone....

17. The radiophone may have its drawbacks too. Henpecked Elmer is shopping for the wife at home. But she seems to have left a few things off her list. So what happens? With the auto 'phone, this is what happens.

23. Well, enough of this. Another future subscriber might be Casanova - on wheels. Oops, wrong number! Well, he never knows when he'll need a new one. You can see he's been through this before. Almost anything can happen as science catches up with the world of tomorrow!