

BRITISH OPEN CASE AT NUREMBERG

Never was any charge against criminals more fully documented than the case ~~against~~ of the free world against the German war makers. Charts show how they dismembered Czechoslovakia, first diplomatically, then by force of arms. Unavoidably the trial is a slow business. Everything is translated, phrase by phrase. As German counsel, for instance, plead^{their} for ~~their~~ clients, speeches are interpreted and conveyed to listeners by earphones.

Goering and the others thought it a tremendous joke when the court was told how they had arranged bogus telephone messages from Vienna at the time Austria was invaded.

In these days of film and photograph it's surprising to note the artist, depicting the scene here for a well known illustrated paper; the scene when Sir Hartley Shawcross opened the ~~British case~~ case prepared by against the German ~~leaders~~ leaders.

Britain
