

AUSTRALIA SENDS FOOD, MORE ON WAY.

A most timely arrival at the Royal Albert docks was a ship load of food, a present from the State of Victoria, Australia. It was sent by the good folk of the Commonwealth as a gift to <sup>hospitals, widows and</sup> old-age pensioners ~~and widows~~ of London, and very welcome it was. The food was shipped before the present ~~and~~ crisis developed.

St. Thomas' ~~Hospital~~ was one of the hospitals to which the food was also given. The much appreciated gift made welcome changes in the patients' diet, bringing delicacies nowadays all too rare. Tins were no sooner in the building than they were opened. Both Australia and Canada, responding to the food emergency of Britain, are rushing supplies <sup>here by</sup> ~~to this country on~~ all available ships. Old and young, we shall all benefit.
