

CAMPBELL POSTPONES SPEED BID

On Lake Coniston Sir <sup>74</sup>Malcolm Campbell has not succeeded in raising the world-water-speed record of 141 miles an hour. Blue Bird, the boat in which Campbell set the record in 1939, now has a jet engine and theoretically should be much faster. On the first

~~good day she was filled up and Sir Malcolm's daughter Jean~~

~~at the lakeside, eager to see her famous father add~~

~~another to his crop of world records.~~

good day she was filled up ready for a trial. ~~At~~ the lakeside, eager to see her famous father add another to his crop of world-records was Sir Malcolm's daughter Jean. The speedking himself believes that a new chapter in motorboating will be opened by jet propulsion. But first - disappointment. At 90-miles an hour Blue Bird went into a skid that required all Campbell's skill to rectify.

--

Even after adjustments Blue Bird still couldn't keep on a straight course and Sir Malcolm decided to postpone further trials for a month.