

CRACK DRIVERS CLASH

Angouleme, historic feudal city in south west France, revived its famous race round the ramparts of the old town. Ten laps; total distance, 65 miles. There were some ~~big~~ British cars entered; our reply to the French invasion of the English turf. The picturesque city provides a race track full of hazardous bends testing the most skilful driver.

12 x

(flag) It was victory for Britain. At an average of 40 miles an hour the race was won in a Frazer Nash driven by Martin. Even that was poor compensation for the Derby.