South African golf wizard Bobbie Locke is the answer to how to get dollars out of America. Ed Oliver was his opponent in the final of the All-American Tournament at Chicago. He and Bobbie Locke ended level and ~~now~~ then

~~started the play off. Joe Louis, who can be knocked out quite easily on the golf course, was eliminated in an early round. Joe has no difficulty in putting anybody down 4 t~~

~~count~~ count ~~on the net~~, but putting a ball ~~down~~ down a small hole is another matter.

For Bobbie Locke everything on the green was perfect.

At the last hole Locke was eight strokes in front, an easy winner. He'd already won ten thousand dollars this summer. Now he picked up another seven thousand. Bobby Locke's a Marshall Plan all to himself.

Joe Louis was still pottering around. ~~putting is what you'd expect if he forgot to take off his boxing gloves.~~

1. TITLE: GOLF: BOBBY LOCKE TAKES $7000 PLAY-OFF!

2. Final round of the All-American golf tournament! -- and a "pin" jolts Ed Oliver as his tournament number is affixed. Oliver, who goes by the nickname of Porky, owns a three-stroke lead over South Africa's Bobby Locke, in the rich match on Chicago's Tam O' Shanter course.

Another crowd pleaser is Joe Louis of Detroit. The champ is kind of puttering around the links while awaiting a fistic challenger. Yes, it looks like putterin' around is just what Joe is doing now....

Back now to the red-hot tournament play. On the 18th green, Bobby Locke measures oh so care--fully! Sinking this three-footer will give him a one-under-par seventy-one and a tie with Oliver for the championship (soft voice) The big gallery's hushed....and....

So, the tournament goes into a 36-hole two-day play-off. Locke, coming up to the 28th hole -- but beautifully!

An eagle-three puts the South African pro eight strokes ahead of Oliver.

The gallery sees Porky cut down Locke's advantage by remaining in a fifteen-footer on the last green...but it's too late.

Cool and machine-like, Bobby Locke holes out with a sub-par one-forty card for the 36-holes! Locke's victory over Oliver brings the South African's earnings in America to over sixteen thousand dollars. For him, our links are lined with gold!!!
