

PRINCESS SEES BEST OF WELSH AGRICULTURE

As President, the Heiress to the Throne visited the Royal Welsh Agriculture Show at Carmarthen. Very sharply by the dollar crisis Britain has been brought to face the fact that, less than ever, can we neglect the land. ~~Tom Williams~~, Minister of Agriculture, ~~son of Wales~~, welcomed the Princess ~~to the show~~.

complimented for long service on the land
Girls ~~arriving~~ saw with satisfaction the fine horses and cattle produced on Welsh farms. The most of everything that agriculture can produce is wanted now; and certainly no charge of taking it easy can be levelled against the men and women of Britian's number one industry. Cups were presented for the best Welsh cob and the best group of Welsh black cattle. About 3,000 excited people broke the barriers of the judging ring. A royal opening for a fine show.
