

BREAD CUT ANGERS PARIS WORKERS

Several thousand Trade Unionists converged on the Champs Elysees from <sup>many</sup> ~~several~~ parts of Paris demanding that the bread ration should not be cut. Buses went off the road for an hour in the afternoon to enable the protest to be attended by transport workers . Their example was followed by the Paris Underground, and the Metro closed its gates.
~~in the historic~~ ~~Champs de Mars~~

Then in the historic Champs de Mars, where Parisians have ~~left~~ off steam for centuries, the demonstrators inveighed against the government, the bread ration, the Black Market, and many other amoyances with French vehemence and a good deal of justification. In a Europe at sixes and sevens the French people are angered and frustrated because the long-promised recovery never comes.