

FLORIDA HURRICANE

Winds raging at well over a hundred miles an hour struck Florida. 90 people were killed, 500 injured. Happily good radio warning was heeded and 10,000 inhabitants got away to safety in good time.

Altogether, in Florida, Louisiana and Mississippi devastation presented the stupendous bill of 25-million pounds.

In a path 200 miles wide ruin and desolation swept Florida, normally the paradise playground of America.
