1. U.S. War Dead Leave Belgium for Home.

Antwerp paid tribute to Americans who died in the liberation of Belgium when the coffins of some soldiers were blessed on their way through the city for final interment in the United States. The families of five-thousand and six hundred men have decided to bring ~~XXXXXXXXXX~~ ^{back the bodies} for reburial in their homeland. Cardinal Van Roey pronounced the benediction, after which the cortege made its way to the dockside.

Back to their native land will go these men who died ~~for~~ ^{we might enjoy Liberty} ~~freedom~~ ^{to live to enjoy it.}

2.

Twelve million logs, biggest wood harvest in Canadian history were floated down the St. Maurice River to the sawmills at Lake La Tuque, near Quebec. ~~It's free~~ ^{to B pulped & eventually made into paper} transportation for a gigantic consignment, as the logs go roaring down ~~the rushing~~ stream.

Arrived at the lake, the logs are automatically sorted into different sizes. Water is ~~sprayed~~ ^{holed} on them to keep down the heat and prevent fire as the wood piles up.

Canada makes an impressive contribution to the world's paper supply.
