NEW YORK DOBERMAN REPEATS AS CANINE KING

New York's Madison Square Garden draws the best-bred dogs in the land for the World Series of canine competition. And to cover the annual Westminster Kennel show, we've got an expert. It takes dogged persistence to make this guy pose.

Proud Dalmatians are but one of a hundred breeds represented in the 2500 entries. sa-a-a-y, who put out those lights?

Every one a star... but even a star needs sleep.

The Keeshond, something of a cousin to the chowchow, is the national dog of Holland.

And in this corner, here's what they mean between a "short pause" and "long pause." Steady now, OK. You can relax.

And to climax the four-legged spectacle: a "best show".

Repeat. Rancho Dobe's Storm, a doberman pinscher who was once just an ordinary house pet. Tops in 1952 - he's again top dog!
