

FLASHES!

One engine on fire, a U.S. Patrol Bomber between Bermuda and the Azores sent out an S.O.S. A Coast Guard Cutter was there within 35-minutes of the crash-landing. Four men ^e in the water, 6 on a raft. Rifle-cocked against sharks, one of the cutter's crew stood alert, as the life-boat made towards the wrecked plane. Another man took these dramatic pictures. Radar had plotted the bomber's position; hence the swift rescue. The 10 ^{men} were all saved. The ^{ir} hope would have been slender indeed but for the ~~super-efficient~~ ^{quite} chain of sea emergency-stations, 7 Rescue might have been impossible but for the modern miracle of radar, 2 ^{final at 6 so small a wreck.}

With oxygen ~~breathing~~ apparatus a diver at Santa Monica, California, made the first test there of a French-designed under-water surf-board. It's called the Mantaray, after the sub-tropical fish, ~~and the same shape~~; and it's for ~~man~~ fishing under water, ~~the~~ fascinating new sport. The feet ^{work treader and} ~~stepped and work~~ the elevators. A compressed-air motor sends the craft along. The U.S. Navy think the Mantaray could be a one-man submarine, to put explosive charges under ~~man~~ men-o'-war.
