SCENE NUMBER

COMPLETE DESCRIPTION OF SCENES

Attached herewith two programmes, with numbers owners etc etc. Shot more than anticipated, but knowing how bad the weather has been, I shot whilst the weather was good. Also I was enabled to get on to Max Aitken' boat "The Lumberjack" and could not resist getting some material here as he and Uffa Fox the reknowned authority on yachting played ball so well.

All the material shot on a boat was shot on this boat with Max Aitken at the wheel and a C.U. of Uffa Fox (fluffy hair and unkept in looks. It is Fox who races with the Duke of Edin.

Amongst the other shots that need identifying is the Commander of the U.S. boat coming to the Royal Yacht Squad, to pay his respects...a quick pan round on two officers, the farthest away from camera is Potato Jones, famous in the Spanish war running the blockade.

The roll punched marked was shot today, showing a dead calm with all the yachts bunched together, not moving, considered here a remarkable sight, there being so many together...

It was possibly this or the sight of several press boats waiting for the Duke to start, that made him decide not to race, in spite of the programme giving the information that he was racing...fingers across lens shows a shot of the boat Cowslip that he was supposed to race,, Uffa Fox in the boat.

Another shot that needs explaing, is the blowing of a pair of bellows, with horn attached for the starting and finishing of races on Sunday..the Royal clubs must not fire guns on Sunday's....The other material is a general build up on Cowes it never looks like a race when the weather is calm, the boats of all classes get mixed up, going any way.
