DISASTERS.- A VIOLENT FIRE IN A TIMBER AND TAR WAREHOUSE
IN MADRID.- AN ALL NIGHT STRUGGLE AGAINST THE FLAMES.-

A violent fire breaks in a sawdust stockhouse in the district between the Paseo de las Acacias and Yererias, in Madrid, and soon was propagated to a nearby timber and tar warehouse.

The firemen fiercely struggle all the night and the following day to quench the flames.

The abundant industrial and burnable materials soon converted that sector in a huge cauldron, and the glare of the flames was visible from the most distant points of Madrid.

Great quantities of wood, coal, tar and other industrial materials valued in several million pesetas, were reduced to ashes. Luckily no casualties are to be lamented, with the exception of a fireman and two employees of the warehouse which suffered some slight injuries.
