

PAVEMENTS EXHIBIT ALL THEIR OWN WORK

To Central Hall, Westminster, ^{flag-} ~~paving~~ stones were delivered, one for each of seven pavement artists competing in the most unusual exhibition the art world ever knew. ^{Out of all the} ~~the~~ colours of the rainbow soon came pictures to delight the eye. The Devon beauty spot, Cockington Forge. ^{By} ~~Man~~ Vicky, the Laughing Cavalier. They're a versatile crew, these chalk manipulators who decorate the pavements and live on the generosity of the passer-by. Well-known at Charing Cross Pier, Alfred Horton put finishing touches to Running Water. Each man received a guinea; a prize of ^{three} £5 awaited the winner. The ~~man~~ judges included actress Jean Carson, ~~and~~ Running Waters got the verdict. ~~man~~ ^{commenced artist} Alf Horton ~~man~~ just after the war. He had no lessons. They laughed when he sat down to draw.

KNELT