

INDIANS GUARD POWS WHO DON'T WANT TO GO HOME

Chinese and North Korean soldiers who refuse to be sent home have been transferred from prisoner-of-war camps on the Cheju Island to Indian Peace Village set up in the demilitarised zone. Thorn in the Red flesh, these anti-communists will be guarded by troops from India ~~while~~ while their future is being settled. U.N. commander Gen. Taylor and Republican Party leader Senator Knowland conferred with the Indian commanding officer, Gen. Bhatia, while helicopters brought in the Indian troops.

Estimates say 15,000 Chinese and 8,000 North Koreans refuse to be repatriated so long as Communists govern their countries. No problem on such a scale has occurred before in the history of war.
