Come on, open up, we've got you covered, that is covered with a camera. Etienne Marchesi was giving a free show, undertaking to walk down the famous steps, on the height of Montmatre of the Church of Sacré Coeur. Etienne holds one extraordinary <sup>world</sup> record; he's walked in this way, out back 200 kilometres, 124-miles.

Tired of walking, he tries another method.

(TV Press) The story behind all this is that Etienne used to be a famous trapeze artist. In a fall he dislocated his spine and double fractured the pelvis. That would have been the end for most men - not for him. He made the complete descent now, child's play after his recent 20-day walk of 6-miles a day on main roads.
