

MISSING COUPLY MYSTERY SOLVED

Llanginning, South Wales, was headline news. Missing for a month had been Farmer John Harries (63) and his 54-year-old wife Phoebe. Their death was feared when they disappeared from their farm. The last the neighbours saw of them was at Chapel. About 400 Carmarthenshire people formed a week-end search party over the Marros Mountain. Scotland

30

Yard were now co-operating with local police. Carmarthen Chief Constable H.T. Lewis directed the search at this stage. Unknown to the hundreds now setting out the mystery of the Harries' disappearance was very soon to be solved.

50

But over the week-end nothing came to life. The ~~searchers~~ ^{further} the ~~searchers~~ ^{parties} roamed over the countryside, the ~~further~~ ^{away they} ~~they~~ ^{were} ~~moving~~ from the solution ~~of the problem~~.

~~(left stone) There was excitement at one stage when some men discovered what they first thought to be a filled-in grave.~~

85

It was not till next day that the mystery was solved. The bodies of the farmer and his wife were found buried ^{not here but} in a field at Cadlo Farm, nearly ten miles from their own. 25-year-old Ronald Harries, son of the murdered man's second cousin, has been charged with the ^{crime} ~~murder~~.