

OXFORD CONFOUND PROPHETS;
DRAW WITH CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge kicked off before 50,000 at Twickenham.

Sensation within 45-seconds was a penalty award to Oxford. Full-back D. A. B. Robinson kicked a perfect goal.

Cambridge drew level in the same way. P.M. Davies (Llandovery and Trinity Hall) scored a goal from 50-yards.

58 The Queen Mother and Princess Margaret saw the game. Oxford went ahead just before the interval, scoring the only try of the match. The old Springbok, Paul Johnstone, touched down. It was not converted. Oxford led 6-3 at half-time. The Dark Blues included 8 South Africans in their side and for this crucial match ~~Oxford~~ found the form which has eluded them all this term. But Cambridge weren't taking matters lying down. In the second half play was robust, to put it ~~rather~~ mildly.

Peter Cook,
The Referee allowed no try for Oxford that time.

130 12-minutes from no side Cambridge equalised, again from a penalty, though only the most fanatical Light Blues in the crowd could deny that Oxford were the better side. However, P.M. ~~Eden~~ Davies scored with a perfect kick.
