

QUEEN SEES FAMOUS CAVES

Every visitor to Waitomo (about ~~Waitomo~~ 30,000 every year) goes to the limestone grottos. The Queen and

Duke of Edinburgh were no exception. The Aranui caves are who named after the Maori/discovered them, not very long ago, when he was chasing a wild pig, which took refuge in the narrow entrance. They're perhaps the most remarkable in the Southern Hemisphere. Certainly, the stalactite formation is ^{among} the best in this part of the world. So is that of the nearby glow-worm ~~caves~~ grottos.

(2 out) All members of the Royal party declared themselves most impressed by these astonishing caves.