ENGLAD BEAT WALES IN LAST MONUTE

England kicked off at Twickenham against a Welsh team that metaphorically wore the laurels of conquerors of the All Blacks. Sure enough Wales scored first; their left wing, G. Howlands just getting over in the corner. The kick at goal failed.

17 minutes later the English right wing, J.E. Woodward, hurled his fifteen stone over the Welsh line, though many spectators thought he didn't properly touch down. Ian King, the new full-back from Harrogate, didn't land the goal, so at half time it was three-all. The game had only been resumed four minutes ^{Woodward} got over again and England led six-three. No conversion. Indifferent kicking just wasn't good enough in that blustery wind.

(Tache) Keep those Welshmen out and we've won, by gad. But no; penalty for Wales. Rowlands scored and the teams were level.

(after crowd) In extra time allowed for injuries England got the try that won the game. The scorer was the ~~might have been~~ Rosslyn Park right-wing, Chris Winn.

One more kick went the wrong way, but England had won. without it.
