Dorneywood, Bucks, was given by Lord Courtauld-Thomson to the nation, to be used by Prime Ministers or any other minister nominated by a Premier. The 45 rooms of the Queen Anne mansion are lavishly furnished in exquisite tasts, a reminder of spacient days now gone. Few indeed, however wealthy, can now enjoy life on this scale. Of many paintings we here show two, one by Reynolds, the other by one of these modern fellows - what's his name - er - oh, Winston Churchill.

Sir Anthony and "ady Eden will occupy Dorneywood while the Foreign Scy. is an office. or till he at last acquires a similar claim to Chequers itself. A relaxed week-end here is the ideal refresher after toiling at the Foreign Office.

The wisitors' book witnesses and occasion when the Queen Mother visited Dorneywood.
