

Combat against the Oil Pest (not exclusive)

Several weeks ago a Danish Swimming Tank had run aground a sank bank in the mouth of the river Elbe. The ship had to leave off several thousand tons of oil, to get free. Now the oil covers about 700 square miles and drives towards the Danish isles. Thousands of ducks and sea gulls lost their lives because they could not get rid of that oil. At the coast of the isle Sylt the children are looking for these animals and if they are still alive, they bring them to Dr. Jacob, the veterinary surgeon, who treats them with some cleaning stuff, which makes them free of that oil. Later on he feeds those birds and sets them in freedom. A special ship is watching the way of that swimming oil carpet on the North Sea.