

PRINCESS MARGARET'S TOUR - GRENADA & BARBADOS

Coming ashore from the Royal yacht Britannia Princess Margaret landed at St. George's, Grenada, where she stayed for two days. H.R.H. was welcomed by the Governor of the Windward Islands, Sir Edward Beetham and his wife.

Grenada was discovered by Columbus and was first colonized by the French. It has been under British rule nearly two hundred years. Arriving on Sunday the Princess attended divine service at St. George's Anglican Church.

After the service Princess Margaret drove to lunch at Government House and a garden party afterwards. As throughout the tour a full programme was arranged. In fact almost the only rest the Princess is having is aboard the royal yacht, on which she journeys between the Caribbean Islands.

In Barbados the Princess visited a health centre at Speightstown. It ~~has~~^{is} been in existence two years and serves the needs of a great many people. A lot of local mothers brought their babies ~~to see the royal visitor.~~

Barbados is the most thickly populated part of the ~~British~~ West Indies, so the health centre has great demands made upon it.

both lunches and dinner
~~In the grounds of Government House H.R.H. was introduced to some scores of people by the Governor,~~
Sir Robert Arundell. ~~A~~ rare departure from the programme was a visit to the Bridgetown Oval. There the Princess greeted the British Guiana Cricket Team and the Barbados Eleven. They were playing a five-day match. Before long these men will be meeting the Australians.

Almost as soon as the Princess makes new friends on the tour she has to bid them goodbye. Now she had to leave for Antigua. Behind in Barbados she left very happy memories of her visit.
