

MARCHING TO THE MOSQUE. (220 ft.)

Friday morning in Kuala Lumpur. The mosque parade. Muslim members of the Federation Police Force march to their Friday prayers along the Federal Capital's main street, presenting a spectacle that is fast becoming as much a tradition as the Changing of the Guard in other countries. They march behind their own band, which has built up a fine reputation for itself in Malaya, and which will shortly be touring the United Kingdom.

Every passer-by and every office-worker feels a lift of the heart as the sound of the band and the marching feet draw near.

And so to the picturesque Masjid Jami', the grand Mosque of Kuala Lumpur - where the martial music gives way to the solemn dignity of the call to prayer.
