

IDEAL HOME

With a fifteenth century castle background the Ideal

Home Exhibition shows <sup>and a</sup> future transatlantic ~~airliner~~ <sup>plane</sup>

~~and a plane~~ that will <sup>fly and</sup> go under water in a section

20

peeping into the future, when in pressurised suits we shall voyage in space ships. <sup>60</sup> ~~50~~ years ago nobody 30

thought of space, travel was leisurely and houses were crammed with furniture and knic-knacks. What a contrast is the lounge of today; nothing sacrificed in comfort and everything labour saving. In the next few weeks

50

everybody's dream of the ideal home will be encouraged by looking round Olympia.

Taking another peep at the future, in home and dress.

13 Why wait ~~for the future~~ for such a sensible idea as this, which gives a lot more space by stowing furniture on the cinema organ principle. No dinner if the mechanism goes wrong. Apparently, even in the future we shall do our own domestic work. And at bedtime nightdresses don't seem any different. Improvement would be difficult, wouldN't it? Outside, nature'll be jogging along in the good old way too.

45
