

FLASHES

At the White House there was a family gathering and for a few hours the presidential elections was pushed into the background. Major John Eisenhower handed over to his mother the charge of his three-month-old baby, Mary Jean. Three other grandchildren, as well as Mrs. Eisenhower's mother and her sister's grandchildren, were in the party.

It's a great relief to the whole family to know that the President is fit again. The dark clouds of long, anxious months have blown away.

THE EISENHOWER FAMILY

The White House bustles with family activity, even as with most of us. Major John Eisenhower gives his 3-month-old daughter Mary Jean to grandmother, Mamie Eisenhower. The President joins the family portrait which includes three other presidential grandchildren, Mrs. Eisenhower's mother and her sister's grandchildren. David Eisenhower, just turned eight, tries to get a smile out of the new baby for the photographers. The Eisenhowers attended church in the morning, and now in the afternoon sunshine, enjoy this hour of reunion.
