

Viscount Airliners with built-in stair-exits, power operated, are being supplied to Capital Airlines of America. That organization is an internal line with many touch downs and finds the automatic stairs a big time saver.

Passengers still have to climb them. Airliner Escalators are ~~still~~ a thing of the future.