

SHANGHAI.

Gaumont British News brings you more pictures of the war in China --- so that you may see, even if you cannot guess, what this war means. Refugees in the foreign concessions of Shanghai stream away to the interior, and safety. Sandbags round the ~~buildings~~ buildings of the western world --- where white men and women live beneath a cross of fire, as guns exchange high explosive above their heads. Blockade --- in the Wang-Poo River --- Chinese merchant ships have been scuttled to check the approach of Japanese men o' war. ^{Sunk by bombing planes} A Chinese gunboat involuntarily forms a part of the blockade --- ~~sunk by bombing planes.~~ The dry dock at Nantao --- here the Chinese withdrew to form a Hindenburg line ^A ~~and day and night the Chinese Red Cross are tending their~~ ~~resources, ^{heavily} ~~heavily~~ overtaxed) --- the casualties ~~for too many~~ ~~though they work day and night.~~ South Station --- four Japanese bombs fell here while a thousand Chinese refugees were waiting to board a train. Wreckage everywhere --- and one or two civilians walk among the desolation after the human wreckage has been cleared away. Little children, too are sitting among the ~~wreckage.~~ ^{ruins.} ~~wreckage.~~ ~~waiting~~ ~~for what?~~~~
