DUKE AND DUCHESS OF KENT.

Our cameraman secured this exclusive picture of the Duchess of Kent leaving a London nursing home, after a visit to her sister. The Duke of Kent on the following day attended a ceremony on the embankment --- when he received, on behalf of the Boy Scouts' Association, the famous ship Discovery. Discovery was the Antarctic Expedition ship used by Captain Scott. The formal presentation was made by Mr Ormsby Gore, in the presence of the Chief Scout. Incidentally, congratulations were in order, for this ~~maxxxxx~~ day was the second birthday of the Duke's son, Prince Edward.

A silver bell costing £200 was the feature of interest in a naval occasion celebrated at Newcastle. It was presented by the people of the city to H.M.S. Newcastle, and it was escorted down to the quay with suitable pomp.

DOG SHOW .

They called it the International Dog Show, ~~and the entries lived up to their name.~~ Wales was there in costume, and even China was able to relax. Nursing of course has no national boundary --- and a hectic evening calls for the same uniform in Australia as anywhere else. But it has to be America where the monkeys go fishing. This chimpanzee is so surprised when he catches one that it bowls him over. But even better than fishing he does impersonations. It's hard to guess who it's meant to be, but he's talking to Tommy Farr.
