

JEAN BATTEN.

Jean Batten used to be known as the Try-Again-Girl because she refused to admit defeat --- and now her way is all-conquering. The previous Australia-to-England record was 6 days 8 hours 25 minutes, held by Jim Broadbent, but the wonderful New Zealand girl easily lowered that time. on this latest trip. ^ Qell done, Jean! Once more you have vindicated your claim to the title 'Queen of the Skies.

CHELSEA.v . BRENTFORD.

Fifty thousand ~~enthusiasts~~ ^{were at} ~~packed into~~ Stamford Bridge to see Chelsea maintain their unbeaten home record, and the Pensioners took the field with the same idea. The Brentford mascot sat on the fence while the visitors came out. ^ Brentford started off with the wind behind them and from the word go they sailed down into the Chelsea half and gave Jackson in goal plenty of work to do. But Chelsea were the first to score. A clever piece of team play put Bambrick in possession, and the home centre opened the scoring. Brentford's equaliser was a ~~real~~ peach. Smith ~~the winger~~ passed ^{gave the ball} ~~inside~~ to Eastham who gave it back and ^ socke ----- One all! But Chelsea were chasing those two points, and Brentford in the second half were playing a man short. Just before half-time the ball went to Argue --- with ^{and} ~~a header~~ he put Chelsea on 2 - 1 ^ and Stamford Bridge went top of the table.
