

MARINES.

For the first time for six years the colour was trooped at Plymouth Barracks, ~~General Sir Lewis Halliday taking the salute.~~

The ceremony was in commemoration of the Battle of Trafalgar, ~~General Sir Lewis Halliday taking the salute.~~ The Colour being handed over, it was trooped in slow time down the line and the parade ended with a march past.

DONOGHUE.

Sixty great little men of the Turf, gave a farewell dinner to the greatest of them all --- Steve Donoghue retiring at the age of fifty-three. An inscribed Cup was handed to him by Gordon Richards. What Gordon said after that will have to be left to the imagination, but the evening was a great success. The Honourable George Lambton gave the toast ~~of~~ Come on Steve --- ~~and the company rose and sang~~ The mind's eye ~~to a genius of the saddle.~~ We recall those conquests of ~~it~~ Donoghue's on that fine old veteran Brown Jack --- Steve won the Derby six times, three times in succession --- and even this year he won the Oaks --- Come on Steve!
